

Chestnut crabapples are large for crabapples, typically around 2 inches (5 cm) in diameter, sometimes reaching up to 3-4 inches, making them golf-ball sized and larger than many crab varieties, known for their sweet, nutty, cider-like flavor. 🔗

Size Details

- Average: About 2 inches (5 cm) across, which is large for a crabapple.
- Range: Can be described as "fist-sized" or up to 3-4 inches in diameter, offering a substantial bite. 🔗

Key Characteristics

- Flavor: Rich, sweet, and complex with nutty, caramel, or vanilla notes, unlike typical tart crabapples, says.
- Appearance: Russeted (bronzed red over yellow) with fine, crisp, yellowish flesh.
- Uses: Great for eating fresh, baking, cider, or sauce.